

Unsolicited Application – Join MapsPeople and Shape the Future of Indoor Mapping

At MapsPeople, we specialize in guiding people through complex buildings with intuitive indoor mapping solutions. With our platform, MapsIndoors, we help users all over the world find their way inside airports, hospitals, corporate offices, campuses, stadiums – and beyond.

We're growing fast and constantly looking for curious, talented people to join our team – even if we haven't yet posted the perfect job match for you.

If you believe you can add value to our journey, we'd love to hear from you!

Who are we looking for?

We welcome unsolicited applications from individuals passionate about making a difference in areas such as:

- Software Development & Engineering – creating seamless digital experiences
- Sales, Business Development & Customer Success – building long-term client relationships
- Marketing, Communications & Branding – telling the right story to the right audience
- People & Culture – nurturing an engaging, diverse and inclusive workplace
- Or other skills and expertise that could support our mission

Whether you're a specialist, generalist, or a visionary with a fresh perspective, we're open to exploring how you can help drive MapsPeople forward.

Why MapsPeople?

At MapsPeople, we offer:

- A fast-moving, international company with headquarters in Denmark and colleagues across Europe and the US
- A flexible, trust-based work culture focused on collaboration, innovation, and continuous learning
- The chance to work with cutting-edge technology that improves real-world experiences
- A strong focus on personal development and a flat, informal organizational structure

How to apply

Submit your unsolicited application and CV.

Tell us about yourself, your motivation, and how you see yourself contributing to MapsPeople's success. We review all incoming applications and will get in touch if a relevant opportunity arises.

We look forward to hearing from you!